“FOLLOW ONLY WHAT IS GOOD”

To endeavour to obtain or to attain to do only what is good is to conform and comply with acts done in accordance with the authority and example of Jesus as a person. Doing only what is good is beneficial to others and is characteristic of God.

God is pleased with His people who follow after what is good and godly.

Continually doing good deeds show a habit of worthy and admirable acts regularly and not just occasionally. This produces a good reputation of being known to be trustworthy, and genuine. Those who follow after what is good shall be rewarded.

Following after the things that are good is evidence of sincere repentance and commitment; it is the purpose of the new creation. Following after only what is good is being conformed to the likeness of Jesus Christ. By following godly examples is being a faithful disciple. It is the purpose for which believers are saved. Personal dedication to do well results in well being.

The life-style that is exhibited reflects the extent of a believer's knowledge of God. The proof of commitment to God is to personally reject evil and embrace a life modelled after that which is good. Jesus is The Source of Truth, and The Way.

+ BIBLICAL KNOWLEDGE- Did you know that there were many women throughout the Bible who were childless? This allowed for God's intervention on their behalf and to protect the chosen lineage of His Covenant Promises by having the choice of both father and mother, which was opposite to the human-made culture of ascribing the importance of lineage only to the older male.

A SETEMBER EVENT-During the mid-1850s. America was wavering on the brink of civil war impassioned opinions. A depression had halted construction and factory output. Banks were failing; unemployment soared. Spiritual weariness permeated the land. In New York City, Jeremiah C. Lanphier, accepted the call of the North Reformed Dutch Church to a full-time program of evangelism. He visited homes, placed posters, and prayed but grew discouraged. He decided to try prayer meetings, thinking that businessmen might attend during their lunch hours. He announced the first one for September 23, 1857, at the Old Dutch Church Finally, one man showed up, then a few others, the next week, 20 came, the third week, 40, and within months the building was overflowing. This revitalization spread to other cities. Offices and stores closed for prayer at noon. Newspapers spread the story, even telegraph companies set aside certain hours. In these cities, prayer services began at noon people could come and go as they pleased. The service opened with a hymn, followed by the sharing of testimonies and prayer requests. Virtually no great preachers or famous Christians were used. It was primarily a lay movement, led by the gentle moving of God's Spirit. The revival—sometimes called “The Third Great Awakening”—lasted nearly two years, and approximately 1,000,000 people were said to have been converted to Christ. Out of it came the largest outlay of money for humanitarian and Christian causes America had yet experienced.

God Bless.
